1 Introduction

Since 2011-2012, the Royal Conservatoire of Antwerp (KCA) has been giving a twofold interpretation to the Integrated Master's Examination of the Music Department. On the one hand, the student has to show that he/she is capable of linking a thorough research attitude to his/her performance practice, while on the other hand still being able to fulfill the predetermined artistic and technical criteria of his/her main discipline. The Integrated Master's Examination (24 ECTS) therefore consists of two parts: the Master's Examination Instrument/Voice, Composition, or Conducting (18 ECTS); and the Master's Examination Research and Lecture Performance (6 ECTS).

For students in the Music Education Degree is expanded to three parts, for a total of 30 ECTS: the Master's Examination Instrument/Voice, Composition, or Conducting (18 ECTS); the Master's Examination Research & Lecture Performance (3 ECTS); and the Master's Examination Educational Project in the Arts (9 ECTS). These three parts can be integrated to a larger extent. For more information, consult the Vademecum Master's Examination Education Project in the Arts.

Program leading to the reflective part of the Master's Examination (Research &) Lecture Performance.

The course Research starts in Bachelor 1 and ends in Master 1, and coaches the student in academic and reflective skills. Throughout Bachelor 1, the latter skills are immediately applied with the use of course materials from Music History, Introduction to the arts and humanities, or Music Analysis. Throughout Bachelor 2 and 3 these applications are expanded towards pre-existing and relevant artistic research, and towards the student's own research.

At the start of Master 1 the (research) subject of the Master's Examination are agreed upon in consultation with the student, the instrument/voice professor, the research supervisor, and the research coordinator. The student will be coached and guided by his/her supervisor throughout the entire process, on an individual basis, and with continuous communication. This leads to the final version of the Master's research, to be submitted at the end of Master 1. Throughout Master 2, the latter will lead up to the Master's Examination (Research &) Lecture Performance.

Important: Research 4 and the Master's Examination (Research &) Lecture Performance are subject to vertical sequentality. In other words, students who do not pass Research 4 cannot enroll in Master's Examination (Research &) Lecture Performance.

Throughout Master 2 an addition to the paper (in function of performance practice) is still possible. Afterwards, the final version of the Master's Examination Research will be submitted.¹ Such an addition can take place in any or several of the following ways:

¹ Not applicable to students Educational Master. In Master 2 the latter only need to comply with the Master's Examination Lecture Performance.

- written additions to the Master's research conducted in Research 4 (Master 1);
- a summary of the research, combined with a video recording;
- a log of the artistic process;
- et cetera.

During a Lecture Performance the student presents his/her research (including the link to performance practice) to an internal and external jury. Students in the Educational Master's Degree in Music do not submit a Master's paper Research in Master 2, but present the conducted research as a Lecture Performance in Master 1 (see below).

2 Master's Research Format

The student hands in a written version of his/her academic reflection on artistic research. This written text should focus on clarifying how the research has had an impact on the student's artistic performance practice. There is no page or word limit. The size of the research dictates the size of the Master's research.

Any student willing to proceed with an alternative format of the research can do as such after consulting the coordinator (Yves Senden).

3 Submitting the versions

The written version of the research is submitted electronically in PDF and word processor format.

Throughout the academic year of Master 1 (Research 4) versions are to be submitted and discussed with the supervisors:

In Master 2 the final version including additions² are submitted in December 2022 via Digitap. This is part of the Master's Examination Research.

Students of the Educational Master in Music are exempt of this version (see study curriculum) and only do a Lecture Performance in which they present their research to a jury, verbally and by means of an artistic performance (see below). Important: they have to submit in Master 2 a final version (see below, 7. Practicalities). This text is exactly the same as the final version of master 1, without additions. You only need to change the title page: mention 'masterpaper' (not: Research 4) and the correct academical year.

Submission of versions is compulsory.

² These additions are not required for students Educational Master.

4 Specification for Each Subject

4.1 General Procedure

The Master's Examination Lecture Performance lasts 30 minutes (unless indicated otherwise):

- max. 15 to 20 minutes regarding performance practice: the students comment the results of their research, also by using artistic means;
- max. 10 to 15 minutes: the jury asks questions regarding the research.

4.2 Master's Examination Instrument/Voice – Strings (high and low)

- If the Integrated Master's Degree is linked to a Creative Project, it is possible to link the contents with the Characteristics of the Orchestra Course.

4.3 Master's Examination Composition

- The emphasis of this research is on the artistic trajectory of the student, specified by his or her methodology; explanation of the context, style, the technicalities, the orchestration, the relation to other art and society.
- In the analysis-part the own work needs to be theoretically analyzed.

4.4 Master's Examination Conducting (choir, brass band, orchestra)

- Students of Composition are advised to choose the elective Research Project 1 and 2.
- Students develop an individual critical dissertation concerning one or more of the parts of the rehearsal programme or final concert:
 - a) A form analysis of a composition from which students draw conclusions with a view on conducting it.
 - b) Style analysis (e.g. what characteristics of this work are typical of Stravinsky?).
 - c) Historical situation to complete the picture.
 - d) Explanation of the selection and structure of the programme.
 - e) Justification of the artistic choices based on students' methodology, artistic journey, technical process, instruments, sources of inspiration, relation to other arts and social situation.
 - f) Report on internships as auditors: what insights have the student gained, what have they learned? Discussion of the rehearsal process, artistic trajectory. Report on talks with conductor, comparisons of recordings, comparisons of rehearsals of the same work by different conductors.
- The Master's examination related to the academic reflection takes place either after the Master's Examination Conducting, or during one of the predetermined dates (see §7.3)

4.5 Master's Examination Creative project

- The student realizes a creative project of 60 minutes in which he/she performs as a musician and (co-)concert organizer. For this the student can collaborate with fellow students and/or external artists. The concert project does not include works that are presented in the exams instrument or chamber music. The Creative Final Project must be presented during the appropriate exam period (period after the Easter vacations until the end of June).

- Around one or more programme components of the master's thesis Creative Final Project the student works out an individual critical reflection (= artistic research), written down in the master paper. Since the reflection and the elaboration of the Creative Project are intrinsically intertwined, it will become fully clear during the execution of the Creative Project in which way the reflection led to the result. This is both an individual process of the student who worked out the critical reflection, as well as of the fellow students and third parties with whom he collaborated. Immediately after completion of the Creative Project, the student is invited to further explain his artistic research in an interview with the jury.

If the subject lends itself to it and it is organizationally feasible, in consultation with the responsible teachers (Jeroen Malaise for the Creative End Project; Yves Senden for the artistic research), a separate (i.e. not on the day of the Creative Project) arranged interview with the jury concerning the artistic research can still be opted for.

- Delivery of an individual sales dossier for the final project/recital, in accordance with the specifications of the lecturer responsible for the course unit.

5 Expectation and Evaluation

The following aspects related to content and format are taken into consideration during the evaluation of the Master's Examination Research & Lecture Performance:

- Has the student thoroughly executed the assignment as demanded and described in this vademecum?
- Is there a clear connection between the research (as described in the Master's research) and the artistic practice?
- Does the student display a critical mindset? Is all the information provided relevant and not plagiarized?
- Did the research add value to the artistic practice? The added value must at least be that the reflection of the student leads to a new practice-based understanding; in that case, there is 'research with new personal insight'. Additionally (but not necessarily), the investigation can be of such a nature that also unknown territory is explored; in that case, we speak of 'research with new output'.
- Did the student follow up on the remarks and suggestions given during the feedback moments throughout the academic year (permanent evaluation)?
- Is the Master's research's formatting and use of language correct and without errors? Does it comply to the Style Guide?
- Is the structure of the work clear? Does the conclusion answer questions formulated in the introduction of the work?
- Were a sufficient amount of sources found and used correctly? Are the bibliography and discography sufficiently diverse and up-to-date? Did the student reflect critically on the included sources?
